

Home > Real Estate

May 12, 2025 01:26 PM | 38 MINUTES AGO

‘Shark Tank’ investor’s penthouse trades quickly in strong week for luxury sales

LILAH BURKE

EMAIL

SHARE

TWEET

in SHARE

REPRINTS

Corcoran Real Estate

The solarium in the Fifth Avenue penthouse.

CRAIN'S NEW YORK BUSINESS

Afternoon 10 Newsletter: Our must-read daily update on New York’s top business stories to get you up to speed before you log off for the day.

SIGN UP

signed by Friday.

---

RELATED

Rangers star nets $13M sale of West Village townhouse

Manhattan and Brooklyn see rise in number of signed contracts for co-op, condo sales

Widower of a Hormel Foods heir sells Tribeca apartment for $12.3M

---

The property was one of the 36 luxury units in Manhattan that went into contract during the week of May 5 to May 11, according to the weekly market report from Olshan Realty.

Corcoran's 3,800-square-foot former penthouse features a fully landscaped terrace facing Central Park as well as a solarium, a wood-burning fireplace, French doors and a private elevator. The co-op building is off East 97th Street and supplies a fitness center and a 24-hour doorman.

Corcoran paid $10 million for the unit in 2015. She first encountered the apartment while delivering a letter there in 1992 and told the owner to call her if the home were ever on the market, she previously told The New York Times. After the purchase, she gutted the unit, spending $2 million over 18 months on renovations.

Corcoran, who is 76, is staying in the neighborhood. The stairs in the Fifth Avenue duplex have become an obstacle for her husband, who is 80 years old, she told the Times, prompting the couple to move into a one-level penthouse elsewhere in Carnegie Hill.

---

CRAIN'S NEW YORK BUSINESS

Afternoon 10 Newsletter: Our must-read daily update on New York's top business stories to get you up to speed before you log off for the day.

SIGN UP

ADVERTISING

Our multi-family office gives you what you... Learn More

Whittier Trust - Sponsored

Olshan's report suggests the unit was sold for more than the asking price, however Crain's could not independently confirm this before press time.

Scott Stewart and Carrie Chiang, the Corcoran Real Estate agents who listed the property, did not respond to a request for comment by press time. The identity of the buyer is not publicly available.

Corcoran founded her real estate group in 1973 and sold it for $66 million in 2001. She joined the show Shark Tank, on which she vets business investment pitches as part of a panel, at its debut in 2009. She has been on the show for 16 seasons.

There were 36 Manhattan units listed for more than $4 million that entered into contract last week, three more than the previous week. If the number of contract signings continues apace, this month is on track to outdo May 2024. April saw about 16% year-over-year growth in luxury contract signings.

The most expensive asking price for a home that entered into contract last week was $25 million for a penthouse at 15 E. 30th St. The 5,150-square-foot apartment has four bedrooms, 23-foot-high ceilings and a large terrace. The NoMad building has a lap pool, a cold plunge, a hot tub and a golf simulator.

RECOMMENDED FOR YOU

London-based investor to purchase Meatpacking District building for $21M

UWS landlords hit with lawsuit amid bank-turned-dispensary plan

Rising construction costs weigh on plan for Midtown tower

Sponsored Content: When under regulatory scrutiny, banks need a sustainable approach to compliance. Here is a three-step solution

CRAIN'S NEW YORK BUSINESS

Afternoon 10 Newsletter: Our must-read daily update on New York's top business stories to get you up to speed before you log off for the day.

SIGN UP